

BODY SYSTEM PATHFINDER

Books

The World Book Encyclopedia (22 vols.) REF 030 WOR

Encyclopedia of Health (2 sets – 16 vols. & 14 vols.) REF 610.3 ENC

The Respiratory System – 612.2 GOL

The Digestive and Excretory Systems – 612.3 GOL

The Endocrine And Reproductive Systems – 612.4

The Musculoskeletal System and the Skin – 612.7 GOL

The Circulatory and Lymphatic Systems – 612.1 GOL

There are other books that contain information on your body organ system. They are found in the same Dewey number range (610-612).

IMPORTANT NUMBERS FOR YOU TO KNOW – 600s

600s – Applied Science

The Dewey Decimal range you should know is 610 to 612. There are a few other books that do have some information in them that are outside of that range. For example, For All to See: a Teen's Guide to Healthy Skin, found at the Dewey call number of 646.726 SIM, has information on skin.

Electronic Resources – Databases & Websites

1. <http://www.teenhealthandwellness.com/> SEE MR. BARNETT FOR ALL USERNAMES AND PASSWORDS. Note: this trial database was set to expire on April 11, 2007. But as of April 23, 2007 it was still accessible.
2. STUDENT RESOURCE CENTER JUNIOR – <http://infotrac.galegroup.com/itweb/fres89581>

Electronic Resources – Continued

3. <http://www.factsforlearning.com> Click on the tab that says “Grades 5 & Above.” Next, enter the body system you are researching in the search box and click “GO.” You will get many results ranging from encyclopedia articles, almanac articles, periodical (magazine) articles, reference books, and special features. This is a GREAT RESOURCE!

4. <http://www.brainpop.com>

SEE MR. BARNETT FOR ALL THE USERNAMES AND PASSWORDS TO THE ABOVE DATABASES.

WEBSITES

1. <http://kidshealth.org/> After clicking on the kid or teen pages, enter your body system in the search box and click search for a list of links.

http://www.kidshealth.org/kid/how_the_body_works.html

Animated short movies explaining the body systems. Click on your system.

2. <http://www.kidsclick.org/>

3. http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Main_Page

4. <http://www.webmd.com/> This site contains information on most diseases affecting the major organs and body systems.

Students there are also many other national and official websites you may find helpful.

Remember, when doing using a search engine like Google.com, only select those resources from official and credible websites.